I apologize for not updating the website. I have been on holiday with my grandfather in Newcastle the past week. I don't like avertizing when I will be away due to security reasons. Each summer believers from all across Northern Ireland and further afield gather for a fortnight of Gospel meetings in a 1000 seater tent in Newcastle, County Down. There are ministry meetings in the mornings, children's clubs, open air meetings and Gospel meetings in the evening. When we were kids, we used to go and spend the fortnight in a caravan on the field, but now we usually go down for a few days in a bed and breakfast. This year we spent a week in the Glenada, a Christian hotel in Newcastle. The food was nice and the staff and guests were very friendly. We had a very good week. But due to my absence I now have a tonne of email to answer, and have missed much of the week's news. I also have a few other problems at the minute that I haven't told anybody about, apart from a few people that email me on a regular basis. I don't want you to email me about this and nobody needs to know what this problem is. I am trying to trust God about it rather than turning to men, and that's why I haven't told anyone about it. But I do value your prayers for God's guidance at this time. Thanks.
