US judges, legislators consider getting governments out of weddings entirely