I was speaking to my sister about the 'healing revival' in Florida last night. As you may have read, we have been watching the Todd Bentley broadcast from Florida, and we believe this movement is not of God. The healings could well be, but as we have seen, the roots of this movement are demonic. Now I believe that according to Scripture, apostates cannot repent. So no matter how much complaining we do to GOD TV, the chances are they aren't going to listen. They're making too much money out of this to begin with. But there are a lot of people who are being caught up in this movement, including members of my extended family. And my sister was thinking maybe we should be handing out tracts outside churches to warn them of the danger. I have also recieved at least a dozen other emails from people who believe this movement is not of God. And I recieved another email today from a friend saying we need to fight against this counterfeit revival. We need to break it wide open in the name of the Lord. So I may be concentrating over the next few days on writing an article, not against Todd Bentley himself, but against his doctrines. And we are going to forward it to a few churches and see how things go.
